

Inspiring Testing – Test Leadership Workshop

A leader sets an example and inspires others to follow and then to lead in their turn. You don't have to be a manager to be a leader—but if you're not also a leader, you can't be a good manager.

- ❖ What does it take to be a leader?
- ❖ Where do exceptional test leaders focus their energies?
- ❖ How can you get to be an exceptional test leader?

Inspiring testing means much more than getting a team to follow you. It means fostering teamwork that will enhance the effectiveness of your whole project team. It also means earning credibility for testing, so that managers and fellow team members understand testing's value, and the importance of the information your testing uncovers. You can shine as a test leader even if you are the only tester on your project team.

In this full-day interactive workshop, we'll examine the key focus areas for test leaders, and work together to identify the skills and personal qualities essential for exceptional test leadership.

You'll have an opportunity to assess your leadership aspirations and potential, and to develop a personal roadmap to help you become the leader you want to be and bring benefits to all the projects you work on.

This workshop is for testers, test managers, test leads—anyone who wants to become a leader or a more effective leader.
